DETAILED ACTION

1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claims 1-4, and 16-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification as filed fail to teach how to make a heat insulating particles covered with an inert substance carbon tetrachloride. The carbon tetrachloride is a solvent and has boiling point of 76 °C. Therefore it would vaporize during film formation.

4. Claims 1-9, 11-19, 21 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for a heat-insulating particle covered with an inert substance having an average primary particle diameter in the range of from 5 nm to 30 nm and in the state of agglomerates the average particle diameter in the range from 10 nm to 100 nm, does not reasonably provide enablement for the heat-insulating particle covered with an inert substance outside the stated ranges (Paragraph [0038]). The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. As per paragraph [0038], when the average particle size lower than the stated ranges, particles further agglomerate and increase haze value of the interlayer and when the particle size higher than the stated ranges to improve visible light transmittance by irradiation of high energy ray and reduction of the infrared radiation transmittance may not be obtained sufficiently.

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-19 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

6. Receipt of Information Disclosure Statement filed July 08, 2009 is acknowledged and all recited documents have been made of record. All non-English documents have been considered to the extent of provided English translation and/or abstract.

None of the cited documents teach or suggest claimed method of reforming interlayer comprising claimed heat-insulating particles with an inert substance, a matrix resin and a liquid plasticizer.

6. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to D. S. Nakarani whose telephone number is (571) 272-1512. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday-Friday.
